To Whom It May Concern:

Purchasing a vertical form fill and seal is a significant investment and so our selection process was extensive, but our main focus was simple: value. We needed a machine that was easy to use, scalable and reliable. Of the manufacturers we looked at, the Viking was the only one that met all of our expectations. But, it was the responsiveness and professionalism of Leonhard Packaging Solutions that provided the value we were looking for.

When the machine arrived, we were duly impressed by the superior construction of the machine. But, the best part is how painless it was to set up and use. From the dozens of references I checked with other manufacturers, I kept hearing how it took them weeks or months before their machine was in production. Our Viking was running product by noon the second business day.

Sincerely,
